WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our regular correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, March 16th, 1888.

Senator Brown, of Georgia, refuses to march to the Administrative music. He made a strong speech in the Senate on Wednesday in favor of his resolution, offered early in January, declaring it to be the imperative duty of Congress to repeal the internal revenue laws at the earliest day practicable. He believes that day has now arrived and that these laws should be wiped from the statute book at once. He believes that the money needed for the support of the Government should be raised by tariff so adjusted as to give American capital and labor all possible incidental protection, and so that the heaviest burdens shall be put upon luxuries.

He is opposed to the Government running two tax systems, especially when one of them is as obnoxious to the people as the internal revenue system is. The Senator's views are directly opposed to those of Mr. Cleveland and the majority of the Democratic party. Mr. Colquitt, the junior Senator from Georgia had on the Monday previous made a speech fully endorsing the President's tariff message, but Senator Brown is in the habit of making two internal revenue speeches for every tariff reform speech delivered by his colleague.

The Senate has produced still another aspirant for Presidential honors. Senator Hale, of Maine, is the latest candidate for a boom according to the gossips of the Capital.

The scoring that Senator Ingalls gave Senator Vest has completely taken away the little fellow's courage, it would seem. Rumor says that at the end of his present term in the Senate he will retire from public life. It is always more or less dangerous to monkey with a buzz-saw.

The Government Printing Office investigation is dragging slowly along. The most noticeable feature this week was Benedict's admission that his Republican predecessor had always shown a disposition to adopt new methods and machinery in that office as fast as they were approved by the trade at large.

Here's a chance for the poor lobbyist to make some money. A sub-committee of the House Committee on Public Lands are preparing a bill to declare forfeiture of all railroad land grants. Of course the railroads will fight this bill and that means a good deal to the seedy lobbyist.

The Republican minority of the Ways and Means Committee are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to get a hearing for the industries affected by the Mill's tariff bill, but so far they have been fought at every turn by the Democrats both in the Committee room and on the floor of the House. However—their efforts will place the responsibility for refusing a hearing where it belongs.

The Presidential outlook from a Republican standpoint remains unchanged. No one candidate is going to the front very fast, although Senator Sherman is said to be making rapid strides in the South. The same thing was said of Mr. Sherman in 1880, however, and he was not nominated, and unless he shall develop some strength elsewhere than in the South and in Ohio it is thought he is not likely to fare any better this year.

Senator Chandler, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs, has attacked the Interior Department for allowing the Chippewa Indians to be swindled out of the timber on their reservations by white speculators. He has written a letter on the subject to Secretary Vilas which is likely to waken up the Indian Bureau thoroughly. "Little Bill" Chandler, as the Senator is sometimes called, is a perfect terror when he gets started. He has a way of fortifying himself with facts that is usually fatal to his opponents.

—At Heppner, on Wednesday the jury in the case of Crumb, for the killing of his brother-in-law, Barret, returned a verdict of manslaughter.

Homily on the Ham.

The modern ham may be justly ranked as the perfection of the pig. The barbaric pig wandering about through fences and rooting up the garden is pork in its wild state. Pork greasy and vulgar is the next step, but the sugar-cured, aesthetic ham which delights the epicurean stomach, is the last glorification.

Ham reached its perfection in New England, where it hung for weeks in the smoke house slowly embodying the aromatic odor of the birch and chestnut sawdust, until a taste of it recalled the delightful scenes of the old New England forest with its mingled colors and odors of autumn. A good judge of ham has to have a more delicate taste and riper experience than the connoisseur of wines. The ham lover, also, is a sober, industrious man, trusty in all things. When you want good ham ask your grocer for the Capital, made by Lindley & Co., Sacramento.
